The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-42 and 44-46 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The amendment to claim 11 states that the classifying step occurs in a processing device. The original disclosure does not provide enough examples of processing devices other than a computer to allow one skilled in the art to know that applicant was in possession of the entire genus at filing. However, the original disclosure is only for a computer. As such, the amendment to the spec and claims lacks an adequate written description and constitutes new matter. In addition, the claims require giving priority to one or more categories. The examiner does not see support for giving priority to more than one category.

Claims 1-42 and 44-46 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention. The invention states that priority is given to one or more of the categories of invention. Applicant's arguments show how priority is given to elevation in that a lower rating of elevation is necessary to move the overall classification up in severity relative to the scale or erythema. However, the arguments forth by applicant state that there is priority given for obtaining the global score. It is unclear how the priority relates to the score, and how the score is computed. However, the claims seem to follow the flow chart without computing the score. Applicant should clarify whether the priority is for computing the score or computing the overall classification. In addition, the claims state that priority is given to "one or more" categories. The specification only seems to enable giving priority to one of the categories, i.e. elevation. Therefore, the claims are not enabled, as it is unclear how to give priority to two or more categories.

Claims 1-42 and 44-46 define over the art in that none of the art gives priority to one class over the others, as claimed.

Applicant's arguments filed 4/13/2010 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

The argument as to the enablement rejection has been addressed above.
